1. Translate the following English passage into Nepali without losing sense and spirit of the original. 10

Please do not mind. Actually it is not my fault. I was just out of my house to pick up my son from the school. However, his class was not finished yet. I thought I should buy some biscuits from the food store. I stopped my bike near the store. The shopkeeper showed me different types of biscuits. He also wanted me to give him a ride to New Road. But I refused as I had to go to school. Meanwhile, you hurried up to catch me up. Unfortunately, you got struck on my bike. Thus, it happened accidentally. I had no intention to harm you. Sorry for that.

2. Translate the following text into English without losing sense and spirit of the original. 10

एक दिनमा ३०० मिलिग्राम भन्दा बढी क्याफिन शरीर र स्वास्थ्यका लागि हानिकारक हुन्छ । सानो कपको ३ कप जति चिया या कफीको माध्यमबाट लगभग ३०० मिलिग्राम क्याफिन हाम्रो पेटमा प्रवेश गर्दछ । यो भन्दा बढी हुने वित्तिकै त्यसले हानी पुऱ्याउन शुरू गर्छ, तर ३०० मिलिग्राम भन्दा कममात्रा हानिरहित हुन्छ ।

क्याफिन एक प्रकारको वैधानिकता प्राप्त नशा हो । यसको नियमित सेवन गर्ने व्यक्तिले कुनै दिन खान पाएन भने त्यसको परिणामस्वरूप टाउको दुख्ने, चिडचिडाहट हुने, निद्रा अस्तव्यस्त हुने, उर्जा नभएको महशूस हुने लक्षण अनुभव गर्न थाल्दछ । क्याफिनको यस्तो नशालु चरित्रले गर्दा नै कतिपय व्यक्तिहरू चिया, कफीको लतमा परेका हुन्छन् ।

3. Summarize the text in one third of its original length. 10

Marriage is an ancient religious and legal practice celebrated around the world. Although the reasons that people marry are similar in many places, wedding customs vary from country to country.

In many countries, it is customary for the bride to wear a white dress as a symbol of purity. In traditional Japanese wedding ceremonies, the bride wears a white Kimono.

2, English, अधिकृत क्याडेट

The tradition of wearing a special white dress for the wedding ceremony started around 150 years ago.

Before that, most women could not afford to buy a dress that they would only wear once. Now, bridal dresses can be bought in variety of styles and fabrics and many brides have their dress specially made.

In different countries, colors other than white are worn by the bride or used as part of the wedding ceremony. In certain Asian countries and in the Middle East, red and orange are considered symbols of joy and happiness. In Chinese culture, wedding invitations are usually red and gold as these are symbolic colors of wealth and happiness. Wedding guests give gifts of money to the newlyweds in small red envelopes. Not all cultures, though, consider money a suitable gift. In many Western countries, especially the UK, wedding guests give the bride and groom household items that they may need for their new home.

As part of many traditional wedding ceremonies, a bride wears a veil. Wearing a veil that covers the head and face is a tradition that is over 2,000 years old. Veils were originally worn as a sign of secrecy and modesty. In some countries, a veil is placed between the bride and groom during the wedding ceremony so that they cannot see each other until they are married.

In many cultures, couples exchange rings, usually made of gold or silver, during the marriage ceremony. The circular shape of the ring is symbolic of the couple's eternal union. In Brazil, it is traditional to have the rings engraved, with the bride's name on the groom's ring, and vice versa. The wedding ring is usually worn on the third finger of the left or right hand because it was once believed that a vein ran directly from this finger to the heart.

6. Read the following passage and answer the questions given below.

Under the influence of democracy the virtue of cooperation has taken place in these days formerly occupied by obedience. The old-fashioned schoolmaster would say of a boy that he was obedient; the modern schoolmistress says of an infant that he is non cooperative. It means the same thing; the child in earlier case, fails to do what the teacher wishes, but in the first case the teacher acts as the government and in the second as the representative of people, i.e. of the other children. The result of the new language, as of the old, is to encourage docility and suggestibility thereby discouraging originality, imitative and unusual intelligence. Adults who achieve anything of value have seldom been cooperative children. As a rule, they like solitude: they have tried to go into the corner with a book and have been happiest when they could escape the notice of their barbarian contemporaries. Almost all men who have been distinguished as artist, writers or men of science have in boyhood been objects of hatred and contempt of their school fellow; and only too often the teachers have sided with the herd, because it annoyed them that a boy should be odd. It ought to be part of the training of all teachers to be taught to recognize the marks of unusual intelligence in children and to control the barbarism caused by anything unusual. Until this is done, a large proportion of the best talent in America will be persecuted out of existence before the age of fifteen. Cooperativeness, as an ideal, is defective: it is right to live with reference to the community and not for oneself alone, but living for the community does not mean doing what it does.

Questions:

- 1) What has happened under democracy to language ?
- 2) How have the words changed in time ?
- 3) What is the result of new language?
- 4) What did the adults use to do?
- 5) How should the teachers be trained today ?
